Board seeks applicants for brand inspection program's highest post

The North Dakota Stockmen's Association (NDSA) is seeking applicants for the chief brand inspector position. The chief brand inspector administers the state's brand program and supervises an inspection team consisting of approximately 30 full-time, 20 part-time and nearly 200 local inspectors.

Applicants must be knowledgeable of the state's brand inspection program and the livestock industry, be or become a licensed peace officer, possess strong communication skills and be willing to locate in the Bismarck, N.D., area. A complete job description can be viewed online at www.ndstockmen.org. The application deadline is June 10.

For more information, call the NDSA office at (701) 223-2522.

The chief brand inspector position was formerly held by Darryl Howard of Bismarck. He offered his resignation last week to pursue other opportunities. Howard had served in the chief brand inspector post for nearly 10 years.
